It is used to identify your machine and to be able to uninstall the application. To find it, open the software, and click on "View" -> "User Area". At the bottom of the window you should be able to see the serial number. It is always the same, unless you change your machine (you should then log back into your account to see the new serial number). You also have the option to reset your serial number to 0000. To do this go to "View" -> "User Area" -> "Reset Serial". After that your serial number will be 0000 and the link will say "No serial number was found". A new herpes virus has been discovered in the eastern area of the U.S., and it may have the ability to destroy human brain cells. Researchers have been working to see what this virus does to human brains, but they have yet to make a definitive diagnosis. The disease was first found in 1983 by a doctor from the West Virginia University School of Medicine, and it has been under study since that time. The disease is named "Kaposi's Sarcoma Herpesvirus", and it is named after the man who first described the disease, a Hungarian physician named Peter Kaposi. The disease has been around since the 17th century, and the same symptoms could be seen with the precursor to AIDS, the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). HIV was first discovered in the 1980s, and the same time period saw the first cases of Kaposi's Sarcoma. A new study was released in March, showing that the virus was found in a human brain. The study was published in the journal Neurology. The researchers were able to identify the virus by using a polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technique that shows the virus in cells. To find the virus in the brain cells, the team led by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) collected brain tissue from 12 deceased patients. They found the presence of the virus in both the brain and the spinal cord in every case. The study was limited to the 12 patients, and the new virus may have spread differently in different people. 4bc0debe42
